PRINCETON UNIVERSITY EAST ASIA PROGRAM FOR NEW JERSEY TEACHERS
PROGRAM FOR SPRING 2020

East Asia in World History Conference
Friday, March 13th and Saturday, March 14th

From the Silk Road to the Belt and Road: Economics, Trade, and Cross-Cultural Exchanges between China, Japan, and Korea and the West from the Classical Period to the Present.

For Teachers of Social Studies, World Literature, Art, and the Humanities in Grades 5-12. Materials will be coordinated with standard world history courses as well as AP and IB curriculums.

Please register at the Princeton University East Asia Program website:
https://eap.princeton.edu/teaching-about-asia-rsvp

All Teacher Programs Are Free
PURPOSE:
To provide essential information and instructional materials for integrating the history and culture of China, Japan, and Korea into world history curriculums including AP and IB programs as well as other humanities courses.

TEACHERS WILL RECEIVE:
• Instruction from Princeton professors and master secondary teachers
• Sample curriculums and lesson plans
• A text and curriculum materials
• 14 hours of Professional Development Credit for New Jersey

TOPICS:
• The impact of “foreign religions” on traditional Chinese belief systems
• The Silk Road and Indian Ocean trade routes as conduits for the exchange of products, technology, and religions between East Asia, the Middle East, and Western Europe
• The rise of Xian as an international city and the growth of cities along the Silk Road
  • Silk Production in East Asia and its impact on world trade
• The place of East Asian products, especially silk, porcelain, and tea, in the European Age of Discovery
• The rise of the modern Japanese economy from the Meiji Period to the present
• The political economy of modern China from Mao to Xi Jinping

PRESENTERS:
Chao-Hui Jenny Liu, Phd, East Asian Studies Program, Princeton University
David Kenley, Professor of History, Elizabethtown College
Frederico Marcon, Professor of East Asian Studies and History, Princeton University
Stephen F. Teiser, Professor of Buddhist Studies and Professor of Religion, Princeton
Ron Hoglund, Teacher of AP World History, Cranford Public Schools
Meghan Mikulski, Teacher of World History, Cherry Hill Public Schools
Rasheedah Saleem-Muhammed, Teacher of Language Arts and Social Studies, Newark Public Schools

Richard Chafey, Administrator Princeton East Asian Studies Program
Lesley Solomon, Coordinator of Teachers Princeton East Asian Studies Program